The Proclamation and the Oath of Ex-Governor Robinson.

[For the Union Press.] Governor Robinson, July 20, 1863, pro claimed:
"For the information and guidance of all officers at the approaching election, I have caused to be herewith published an act of the Legislature of Kentucky, entitled 'an act to amend chapter 15 of the Revised Statutes, entitled citizens, expatriation, and

"The strict observance and enforcement of this and all other laws of this State regulating elections, are earnestly enjoined and required, as being alike due to a faithful discharge of duty, the perpetuity of the elective franchise, and to the sovereign will of the people of Kentucky, expressed through their Legislature."

In conformity with the State law the election eath required by Governor Religion.

election oath required by Governor Robin-

You, A. B., do solemnly swear that since the 11th day of April, 1862, you have not entered into or been in the service of the so-called Confederate States, nor in the service of the Provisional Government of Kentucky, in either a civil or military capacity; and you do further solemnly swear pacity; and you do further solemnly swear that since the said 11th day of April, 1862, you have not taken up or been in arms against the military forces of the United States, or the military forces of the State of Kentucky—and you do further solemnly swear that since the said 11th day of April, 1862, you have in no way, either directly or indirectly, given any voluntary aid or assistance to any person or persons who were in arms against the military forces of the United States or the military forces of the State of Kentucky. So help you God."

The above proclamation and oath were approved by Gen. Burnside, who, July 31, 1863, declared Kentucky under martial law for the purpose of protecting the rights of eyel citizens at the polls and elsewhere, commanded all military officers "to aid the constituted authorities of the State in the support of the laws and the purity of suffrage as defined in the late proclamation of his ExcellencyGov, Robinson,

Gov. Bramlette, too, Oct. '64, proclaimed that the same Expatriation Act "should be strictly and faithfully enforced according to its own provisions," and prescribed the same oath. And just afterward Gen. Burbridge ordered that said act and oath "must be the test of political rights to the rebel element in our midst, whether resident or sojourning from other States, and neither false oaths nor the culpable connivance of partisan officers of elections will shield from punishment those who violate the act. Those known as adherents of the cause of the rebellion will not be permitted to indulge in seditious discussions, attend political meetings, or the places of voting on election day." MARCO.

Musical Accent.

At a trial in the Court of King's Bench (June 1833) between certain publishing Tweedledees, as to an alleged piracy of an arrangement of "The Old English Gentleman," T. Cooke was subpensed as a witness. On cross-examination by Sir James Scarlett, that learned counsel rather flipantly said: "Now, sir, you say the two melodies are the same, but different. What do you mean, sir? Tom promptly answered: "I said that the notes in the two copies." ed: "I said that the notes in the two copies were alike, but with different accent." Sir James: "What is a musical accent?" James: "What is a musical accent?"
Cooke: "My terms are a gninea a lesson, sir." (A loud laugh.) Sir James (rather ruffled:) "Don't mind your terms here. I ask you what is a musical accent? Can you see it?" Cooke: "No." Sir James: "Can you feel it?" Cooke: "A musican can."
(Great laughter.) Sir James (very angrily):
"Now pray, sir, don't beat about the Bush;
but tell his lordship and the jury, who are supposed to know nothing about it, the meaning of what you call accent." Cooke:
"Accent in music is a stress laid on a peculiar note, as you would lay a stress on any liar note, as you would lay a stress on any liar note, as you would lay a stress on any given word, for the purpose of being better understood. If I were to say you are an ass, it rests on ass, but were I to say you are an ass, it rests on you, Sir James." Reiterated shouts of laughter by the whole court, in which the bench joined, followed, this repartee. Silence being obtained, Lord Deput the land of the property and the property are Overtaking them.—[Cincinnati Commerci:l. overtaking them.]

GENERAL NEWS.

Considerable sensation has been occa-sioned in Lansingburg, N. Y., by the revelation of a domestic d fliculty in the family of a well-known resident. It seems that he married a second wife only nine weeks after her predecessor died. In a few days, he demanded of his new spouse that she should make over the deeds of her large property to him. She refused, and the re-sult was a series of remarks which led his own daughter by the first wife to remonstrate with her father. Seduction and Robbery.

A wholesale grocery merchant of Saint Louis arrived here last Friday, and called at the Burnet House, where he made anxious inquiry of Mr. Wilkinson as to whether the names of George W. Ashcraft "and lady" had been registered there. Being informed in the negative. he left, the same day, for New York, in quest of the parties. Upon this incident hangs a tale. It appears that the George W. Ashcraft referred to had been in the employ, as book-keeper, of the gentleman who is now making such a viggentleman who is now making such a vig-orous search for him. His employer has a daughter of eighteen, a beautiful girl, who had become enamored of the said bookkeeper, who is said to be a young man of fascinating address, remarkably good looks, and evidently unscrupulous character. Discovering his advantage, Ashcraft immediately followed it up, to the shame of the unfortunet of mediately followed it up, to the shame of the unfortunate girl, who readily yielded herself to his wishes.

While their peculiar intimacy was yet a secret, known only to themselves, Ashcraft, fearful of the consequences, proposed to her father for her hand in marriage. The father refused his consent, which would certainly have been granted had he known the real state of affairs; but neither of the guilty parties had the courage to inform the guilty parties had the courage to inform the parents, and the result was, that the weak, yielding girl, fearful of their anger, and dreading the shame she would have. dreading the shame she would have to en-counter upon exposure, and still clinging with all the fervor of the love of her passionate nature to her guilty companion, contented to leave the city with him. Upon the night of their departure she penned and directed to her mother a short note, and directed to her mother a short note, vaguely hinting at the facts of her misfortune, while the book-ke-per appropriated to himself the sum of $1,500, which he had placed in the blank-book, as if for a deposit. As soon as he could ascertain the direction in which the fugitives had started, the grief-stricken father left his home in pursuit of them, with the determination of pursuit of them, with the determination of overtaking them.—[Cincinnati Commerci .].

Major-General Rousseau.

[For the Union Press.] It may not be uninteresting to your readers to know something of General Rousseau's past life—parentage, education and rise to the notice of the public. His parents emigrated to Kentucky from Virginia, at emigrated to Kentucky from Virginia, at an early day, and settled in Garrard coun-ty. They did not belong to the F. F. V.'s, but Mr. Rousseau, the father, was a man of intelligence and education, acquired with-out the advantages of school, by hard ap-plication. He taught school for the purphoton. He taught school for the purpose of teaching his own children and of maintaining his family—an occupation which yielded him a very slender income to feed and clothe twelve children. Old Mr. Rousseau died in 1832 or '33, with cholera, eaving the care and maintenance of the amily to the two elder brothers, Lovel H., now Major-General) and Richard. They (now Major-General) and Richard. They were then but boys, and the balance of the children being younger, could be of no help in supporting the family. The two boys supported the family by any sort of labor they could get to do. About the year 1834, Mrs. Rousseau lived in Garrard county. The writer of this, while on a visit to that county about that time, saw the two boys, Lovell and Richard, chopping and hanling Lovell and Richard, chopping and hauling wood, with an ox team, thus providing the means of livelihood for the family. The history of General Rousseau shows what industry, lofty aims, and perseverance will accomplish, under our free institutions. About the year 1836, the family moved to Louisville, and not long after the mother died. Lovell, with his brother Richard, went died. Lovell, with his brother Richard, went to Indiana to seek employment, after the death of their mother, where they remained some time. While laboring to provide for the family, the two boys were fitting themselves by study for some higher employment, and by dint of improving all their spare time, they were enabled to return from Indiana, after a short absence, and commenced the practice of law sence, and commenced the practice of law. With the life of Gen. Rosseau since that time, the people of Louisville are familiar. He soon became a prominent lawyer. With his career since the rebellion broke out, the whole country is familiar enough. That he is destined to act an important and hon-orable part in the politics of the country, MARCO, JR.

As every loyal subject is by this time ware, the Prince of Wales's chimney caught fire the other afternoon, and the "de-vouring element," as reporters sublimely style a fittle hot soot, was only subdued after the most arduous exertions on the part of Lord Derby, Lord Palmerston, and His Royal Highness himself. Such is the simple story as given in half a dozen lines in most of the morning papers. But only the fashionable Post does full justice to the monentous importance of the event and the eroic achievements of the principal actors. The epic simplicity with which the writer opens his story prepares us for what follows: "There is no exaggeration in saying lows: "There is no exaggeration in saying that Marlborough House stood in extreme jeopardy yesterday afternoon, and there can be no question that good luck alone has hitherto saved the building, for it is little less than a miracle that no serious disaster has occurred, there long ago," Observe the warriess of the style the geopony of provide wariness of the style, the economy of words, and the cogent proof of the proposition about good luck by means of the other proposition about a miracle. Theart of putting the same statement into two forms of words, and then advancing one as a proof of the other, is here employed in a master ly manner.

The subject is treated throughout with the same power and skill, and the result is a picture which ought to live in history along with that of Canute and his courtiers As soon as the fire broke out the Prince hastened to the spot. 'Seeing the urgency of the case, without a moment's hesitation he threw off his coat and waistcoat and handed buckets of water from the tank, or threw them on the fire with more alacrity perhaps than any of the other persons as-sisting. Why 'perhaps?' Can it be doubt-ed? Besides the courageous manipulation of the buckets, the Prince gaye' the most judicious orders throughout the exciting scene.' When it became evident that, 'in order the more effectually to combat th danger,' somebody must go-no, we beg pardon, 'an entrance must be effected'-into 'that part of the building commonly called "cockloft," 'the Prince was first to penetrate 'into the region indicated.' We can sympathize fully with the distracted feel-ings of the fashionable reporter whom a hard fate compelled to call anything by the name by which it is 'commonly called.'
The whole body ought really to lay their heads together and invent some less odiou name for a cockloft. It sounds so horribly yulgar, and the notion of a prince having to climb into a cockloff approaches the trag-ic. However, the literary Jeames has done his best to soften the thing down by the genteel phrase of 'penetrating the region

"Unhappily the Prince 'penetrated' the region indicated in another sense. Not knowing that, to secure one's safety, it was necessary to tread on the joists, he trod on the lath and plaster work, constituting the ceiling of the apartment beneath.' The blood of the reader runs cold as he picture the heir to the throne walking on lath and plaster, and without his coat and waistcoa too. The worst apprehensions of the on-lookers were realized, and the lath and plaster gave way. As they did not 'prove weight to a royal personage. The famous Queen of Spain, who 'nad no legs' officially, ought to be the type of princely nature. It was probably only by the slip of the pen that the writer betrayed this base anthropomorphic conception of a prince. But be that as it may, at this point the neglected joists came in useful and prevented him from falling far. 'He quickly extricated himself laughing met heartily of the himself, laughing most heartily at the drollness of the mishap, even amidst the danger which threatened. By the way, 'threatened' is rather a weaker way of ending a sentence.' ing a sentence. 'Imminently menaced his royal residence,' or some such phrase, would have been more worthy of the occa-sion. Jeames does not get hold of such a theme as a prince in a cockloft every day, WATCH MAKERS.—A jewelry stand, with stock and fixtures, for sale very cheap.

"The last sentence, however, of this amazing composion is pretty fair. It tells us that 'the Prince of Wales, as soon as the fire was extinguished, though in a condition in which he was hardly recognizable, failed not to remember those who assisted him, and ordered refreshments to be served out to the blackened and begrimed people who had worked so hard and well." It rather reminds one of some of Mr. Bright's fine things about the sons and daughters of the congressional Districts are composed. fine things about the sons and daughters of toil. We do not, however, quite see the force of the 'though.' We fear Jeames has fallen into a confusion of the subjective and objective. There is no reason why a man, who is not recognizable should not recognize others, nor does it follow, because he has a dirty face and is without a coat, that his bosom should be unmoved by gratitude and considerateness. But the footman who, we presume, writes these things, may be pardoned for associating good nature and other excellences with a good coat. It is the nature of the creature. He thinks the seat of the soul is not in the pineal gland, or any other part of the body, but in the coat and waistcoat. At all events, the Prince may be congratulated on having proved in his own person the falsehood of the cynical saying that no man is a hero to his own

A Horrible Crime Terribly Explated --Two Negroes Hung by a Mob in Evaus-

The two negro brutes, who so fiendishly maltreated a white woman on Sunday, fearfully expiated their crime yesterday af-

Early yesterday morning a crowd of excited people commenced collecting around the court house and jail, demanding that the prisoners be delivered up to them. The demand was refused, of course, and at non the crowd dispersed, and it was hoped that better counsels would prevail, and that the guilty wretches would be left to the regular

But, after noon, the crowd assembled again, and the excitement had evidently increase until about half-past 3 o'clock, when the front door of the jail building was broken open with a sledge hammer and the crowd rushed into the jail. How they reached the prisoners we did not learn, but they was seen degreed forth into the street hey were soon dragged forth into the street, ceaten down with clubs and shot.

After they were dead they were taken up and hanged to a lamp post on the corner of he street, where they were hanging at a ate hour in the evening. They were ulti-nately, we learn, taken down and buried. It was the first scene of the kind, ever enacted in Evansville, and for the fair fame of the city, we hope it will be the last. Every one execrates the abominable and orutal crime committed by the negroes, but nob law is a dangerous remedy for evils of his or any kind, and all good citizens de and summary punishment will prove such a warning as that we shall never again hear of such a crime in our midst.—[Evensville Laurent 1921 to 1921] Journal, 31st ult.

Disraeli's Estimate of the Results of the Milection.

After their unopposed election the three members from Bucks-Mr. Disraeli, Mr. Du Pre, and Mr. Harvey-dined with a number of their constituents. The most significant of Mr. Disraeli's brief speech on hat occasion was as follows: "I may say, as tar as I can yet go, that the result of the appeal to the country will be to accomplish that which was contemplated—namely, that there will be no reduction in the power of hat great conservative party which cer ainly has prevented the party at present in power from carrying into effect those measures the accomplishment of which was the condition on which they came into office. I say that is the most moderate estimate that can be formed of the result of this ap peal to the country. On this result I may congratulate you that no great public danger is to be leared. I am sure that, as in the last, so in the present Parliament, there will be a predominance of conservative feeling, if not an absolute numerical majority. But if the position of the party be such, as no doubt it will be, if a Parliament be returned with a decided conservative feeling, you may rest assured that no at-tack can be attempted with any success on those institutions which from conviction we are resolved to uphold, but that ere long, and possibly before any considerable time has elapsed, the opinions which govern the ountry will be upheld in that constitutional and responsible form in which we hold hey ought to be. For there can be nothing nore dangerous than that the government hould be carried on by men who profess principles contrary to those on which they came into office."

Dastardly Attempt to Assassinate Colonel Miller and Others.

[From the East Tennessee Union Fag.] HEADQUARTERS STH TENN., CAVALRY, SWEETWATER, TENN., July 20, 1865.—One of the darkest and grandest plots of assassination and robbery that has been brought to light since the assassination of our beloved President came near being enacted in our brigade last night, but, thank fortune, was revealed before it was perpe-trated. Colonel Miller was to be the printrated. Colonel Miller was to be the prin-ciple victim. Captain Taylor, Captain Der-ran, and other officers of the brigade were to share his fate. Their object was to get the watches, money and other valuables in possession of the officers. William Honey-cutt, formerly a Lieutenant in company B, 13th Tennessee cayalry seems to be the 13th Tennessee cavalry, seems to be the originator of the plot, although several others are implicated. THE CASE IN A NUT SHELL.

Kentucky wants labor to-day more than anything else. That portion of her negro population that has not fled from the State under the stimulus of the human and inextinguishable passion for liberty, is restless under continued bondage, and untrustworthy as a laboring force in consequence thereof. The spirit that clings with deathgrip to an effete and detestible institution, is calculated more than any other to repel intelligent freemen who depend on their toil for their livelihood from immigrating hither. Such obstinate devotion to a folly and a nuisance, such a pertinacious attachment to a tyrannical, corrupt and corrupting social order (or dis-order) after the pation has solemnly announced its overthrow as essential to its own preservation, reveals such a perverse temper and questionable loyalty in our people, as cannot fail to become a potent obstruction to the ingress of free laborers.

Blacks certainly will neither stay, nor return when once they have escaped. And white freemen from the North and East will seek a less repellant and abolition-cussin community. Any one at all conversant with the motor-forces which guide and originate the movements of men in masses, must perceive this aspect of the case clearly and vividly. The only immediate relief is for Kentucky to acquiesce frankly and freely in emancipation. It is egregious folly to shut our eyes to the fact that the negroes are sufficiently wide awake and alive to their own interests, to know full well what is going on in the State, and to be on hand for going off themselves en masse, when they hear the decision of the State against their liberation. It is equal folly to deny that their loss will be felt, and severely so; or that the loss already sustained by the flight of some and demoralization of the remainder, is a formidable abatement from the wealth of the State.

But a hundred accessory facts and circumstances augment the gravity of this loss many-fold. Prime amongst these is the ugly fact that nobody comes to take the place of the fugitive or the no longer trustworthy negro laborer. The farmer who has lost his slave-help loses a part or all of his crop.

Another fact is that the adherence of Kentucky to slavery against her manifest interest, and her equally manifest destiny, chiming in as it does with the conduct of a rankly disloyal reactionary faction in the South draws upon her the distrust and suspicion of the entire lovalty of the country and will for a long time subject her to being both watched and avoided by loyal people. It is no secret that this very consideration has induced already some of the very best inhabitants of the State to leave it. The number of these self-exiles will increase if the amendment is rejected at the coming

Nobody, not even the editor of the Demo crat, has the hardihood to announce the be lief that slavery can be rescued by any means, much less by Kentucky's rejection of the amendment. What then are we to has been taken to Washington in irons, was recognized, it is stated, in Baltimore, while plete exodus of our slave population: a plete exodus of our slave population; a practical veto on the immigration that might furnish an equivalent for this loss an increased depletion of our loval white population; the distrust of the nation and our own self-contempt. We may also add (judge ye of its weight and value) we shall gain our own will.

punctilious sense of propriety! It was this which prevented the editor from stating the case as it was, and compelled him to give the coloring to it which should cast as much censure as possible on the military administration in the State. It would improve this quibbler a good deal, if he did "know what our notions of propriety are," and acted on them occasionally. Comprised in these "notions" is the one that an editor, in reporting facts, on which he bases denunciation of public servants in their efforts to administer justice and preserve public order, should state all the facts in his keeping that are essential to an understanding of the case. If "propriety" forbids this, then he is bound to keep silent on the subject till, such time as the propriety blockade is removed. We shall not stop to argue this point. The man to whom it does not appear self-evi- and re-arrested on the charge of killing dent, had better shut his mouth about "notions of propriety." The Democrat admits, tacitly, that the facts given him by General Palmer were essential, but it had no liberty to publish them. Did it receive any prohibition from publishing them? Dare the editor deny that General Palmer expected him to publish them it he said anything on the subject? Don't he know that by walking a square and a half he could have obtained consent to do it?

He is a wonderful specimen of punctiliousness, is this editor! His "notions of propriety" take the fol'owing somewhat eccentric shape. He hears a rumor which he deems derogatory to Gen. Palmer as an official. He sends a messenger to that gentleman to ask, how about it? The General, treating him with a courtesy manifestly undeserved, gives him the facts as far as ascertained. and which preclude himself completely from censure. The editor publishes the rumor and withholds the facts, because, forsooth, he is subjected to the inexorable constraints of propriety! He need not have assured us that the public would never have learned from him anything about the reception or contents of General Palmer's letter. The public will never learn from him any facts interfering with his impudent fictions.

CITY AND GENERAL NEWS.

Campbell, Copperhead: Sixth District, Dorsey B. Thomas Copperhead: Seventh District, Col. J. R. Hawkins, Union; Eighth District; Rolfe Sanders, Copperhead. Maynard possibly he will be. Stokes will defeat Hood by an overwhelming majority. Cooper has no positive opposition. The contest between Hawkins and Etheridge will be close, but Hawkins has the chances on his side. Etheridge is in a military prison at Columbus, and considers himself a great martyr. Campbell's position is very embarrassing to himself and his friends. He denounces our State Government as unconstitutional unwarranted and tyrannical, but has placed in the hands of its Secretary of State an oath to uphold and defend it. Gideon Pillow is said to be making Union speeches.

NEW PAPER HOUSE.—Down town merchants and the trade generally will be interested in the announcement and advertisement of Mr. Wm. Cromey. This veteran dealer in paper "flat and tolded" is too well known to this community and the Western and Southern market generally, to need more than a stock of goods and a liberal amount of advertising in the PRESS to insure a large share of business. With two such establishments as Duponts' and Cromey's to depend upon, newspaper proprietors and jobbing merchants in this section have no occasion to go beyond Louisville.

Before the Military Commission, yeserday the cases of Wm. Bruce, W. K. Bruce, Robt. P. Johnson, Ira Stewart and W. G. Akin, charged with being guerrillas, was taken up and all the witnesses for the prosecution examined. The defence will commence to-morrow. STEALING CLOTHING.—Officer McDonald arrested a demirep vesterday by the name of Elizabeth Holland for stealing clothing from a woman in Hancock street. The two women were living in the same house until yesterday when Elizabeth changed her quarters taking part of the wardrobe of her friend. The case will be investigated in the police court this morning.

ROBBED.-Three discharged soldiers went nto the barber shop at the corner of Fifth and Market Streets last evening, for the purpose of submitting to a tonsoral operation. While in the shop one of the party was robbed of $185. It is suspected that one of his comrades did the stealing, as he suddenly left the party in the shop.

THE CHOLERA.-The cholera visited this country in 1832, and again in 1849-a period of seventeen years apart. Persons are predicting that it will again visit us at the close and unappeasable, however disguised: that programme last night was quite equal if of a period of seventeen years from its last advent. This would make it re-appear in 1866. This may be true, or it may not. It is well to prepare for it, but not to fear it.

Proclamation.

To the Officers of Elections; COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY, EXECU-TIVE DEPARTMENT, FRANKFORT, KY., July 19, 1865.—The purity of the elective franchise can only be preserved by a faithful enforcement of the laws governing the same. For their enforcement the officers will be held were resident.

will be held responsible. Every free white male citizen, 21 years of age, who has resided in Kentucky two years, and whose residence has been in the district where he offers to vote for 60 next next preceding the election; and each white male citizen who, not having two years residence in the State; but has resided one year in the county, and sixty days in the precinct where he offers to vote, next preceding the election, is entitled to vote; provided he has not a restricted himself. vided he has not expatriated himself and lost the elective franchise by coming within the provisions of the following act:

AN ACT to amend chapter 15 of the Revised Statutes, entitled "Citizens, Expatriation, and Aliens."

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assem bly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That any citizen of this State who shall enter into the service of the so-called Confederate State, in either a civil or military capacity, or into the service of the so-called Provisional Government of Kentucky, in either a civil or military capacity, or having heretofore entered such service of either the Confederate States or Provisional Govern-ment, shall continue in such service after this act takes effect, or shall take up or continue in arms against the military forces of the United States or the State of Kentucky, or shall give voluntary aid and assistance to those in arms against said forces, shall be deemed to have expatriated himself, and shall no longer be a citizen of Kentucky; nor shall he again be a citizen, except by per-mission of the Legislature, by a general or special statute. SEC. 2. That whenever a person attempts, or is called on, to exercise any of the con-stitutional or legal rights and privileges belonging only to citizens of Kentucky, he may be required to negative, on oath, the expatriation provided in the first section of this act; and upon his failure or refusal to the section of the section not be permitted to exercise any such right or privilege.

SEC. 3. This act to be of force in thirty days from and after its passage.

All persons challenged as coming within the provisions of this law, should be required to take the following oath, prescribed by my predecessor, and which is in conformity with the law:

OATH. "You do solemnly swear that you have not, since the 10th day of April, 1862, been in the service of the so-called 'Confederate States,' or in the 'Provisional Government of Kentucky,' in either a civil or military capacity, and that you have not given, directly or indirectly, VOLUNTARY AID AND ASSISTANCE TO THOSE IN ARCH. ANCE TO THOSE IN ARMS AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES OR THE STATE OF KEN-TUCKY, or those who were intending to join the armed forces of the so-called 'Confederate States,' and that you will bear true and faithful allegiance to said Governments of the United States and State of Kentucky, so help

Absence from the place of residence in the service of the country, or from any other cause, where no intention existed to change the residence, will not exclude from voting, if present at the election precinct where his residence is, on the day of elec-

Absence without any purpose of changing the residence, keeps the residence of such person in his voting precinct.

Loyal men throughout the State are requested to report to the Governor any dis-egard of the expatriation law, either upon the part of officers or citizens; giving the names of the offenders—that they may be proceeded against for such violation. The officer who shall fail to discharge his duty, as prescribed by law, or the citizen who, not being entitled to vote, shall do so in violation of law, should be promptly reported, that the proper steps may be taken for his punishment. These plain words are spoken, that none may act upon the supposition that they will be permitted, with impunity, to disregard the laws made to guard and protect the purity of the elective franchise, or override the lawfully established sovereignty of the people.

SYMPTOMS. The Symtoms of Catarrh are at first very slight. Per sons find they have a cold, then they have frequent at-tacks, and are more sensitive to the changes of temperature. In this condition, the nese may be dry, or a slight discharge, thin and acrid, afterward thick and adhesis As the disease becomes chronic, the discharges are increased in quantity and changed in quality; they are now thick and heavy, and are hawked or coughed off. The secretions are offensive, causing a bad breath; the voice thick and nasal; the eyes are weak; the sense of smell is ssened or destroyed; deafness frequently takes place. Another common and important symptom of Catarrh is that the person is obliged to clear his throat in the morning of a thick or slimy muceus, which has fallen from the head during the night. When this takes place the person may be sure that his disease is on its way to the and should lese no time in arresting it. The above are but few of the many Catarrhal symptoms

NEW YORK, August 2.—The Government steamer Florida, which carried the assassi-nation conspirators, Mudd, O'Laughlin, Ar-nold and Spangler to Fort Jefferson on the noid and Spangler to Fort Jefferson on the Dry Tortugas, has returned here from that place on the 26th, and from Key West on the 27th. The prisoners were not aware until after starting on their journey that their destination had been changed from Albany penitentiary to this spot, off the Southern coast of Florida, and being informed of it were unpleasantly affected, but after their arrival on finding that the island, which is about thirteen acres in extent. enwhich is about thirteen acres in extent, en-joys a fine sea breeze, and was not so bad a place as they had supposed.

They were agreeably disappointed, and congratulated themselves on the change. They reached their place of imprisonment on the 25th of July, and were immediately afterwards put to appropriate service-Dr. Mudd being placed in the position of an Assistant Surgeon, Arnold that of a clerk, Spangler set to work at his trade, that of a carpenter, and O'Laughlin put to an employment on which he can be useful.

There are about 550 prisoners now confined on the Dry Tortugas,
